101 Gough St. is located on a 60' x 105' lot on the northwest corner of Gough and Page Streets. Built in 1912, 101 Gough St is a 3-story, wood frame apartment building over commercial space designed in the Classical Revival style. The rectangular-plan building, clad in brick and formstone, is capped by a flat roof. The foundation is not visible from the street. Though addressed on Gough Street, the primary façade faces south toward Page Street. A secondary elevation faces east toward Gough Street. The primary façade is 9 bays wide. A raised basement story is exposed along the east end of the façade and has deeply recessed wood frame, fixed windows. A basement entrance is located in the seventh bay. The west end of the first story is clad in formstone and features a commercial unit with a glazed aluminum door and jalousie transom and three contiguous metal-frame fixed windows. Two small, double-hung wood sash separate the storefront from the main entry in the fourth bay. The entrance is recessed and features double-leaf, glazed aluminum doors. A decorative metal grille is set above the recess. The rest of the first story is clad in rusticated brick and features alternating single and paired flush double-hung wood windows The upper stories feature semi-hexagonal bay windows alternating with double-hung, flush windows. The bay windows have double-hung wood sash and metal casement sash. The second-story windows have bracketed dentil cornices, while the third story windows have spandrel panels. The Gough Street elevation is 4 bay wide with a rounded corner bay and generally the same materials and arrangement of elements. Small wood awning windows are set in the second bay. Both elevations terminate in a dentil frieze, a cornice with modillions, and plain parapet. The building appears to be in good condition.
